

NO WORD MRS. BOYLE'S BEHAF

Her Counsel Relies on Contention that Pennsylvania Courts have no Jurisdiction

PREFERS DEATH TO PENITENTIARY

Mrs. Boyle Says that She will Commit Suicide Before She will Suffer Imprisonment—Both Principals Declare that they Have Not Been Permitted to Tell the Whole Story—Would Bring in Another Person.

Mercer, Pa., May 7.—Relying entirely upon their contention that the Pennsylvania courts have no jurisdiction in her case, counsel for Mrs. James Boyle, who is on trial charged with aiding and abetting and kidnapping of "Billy" Whittle, refused today to offer any evidence in her behalf.

Arguments to Be Made Today.

Arguments will be made tomorrow and the defense hopes to convince the jury of the correctness of its contention. The claim of the prosecution that Mrs. Boyle participated while in this state in the conspiracy to kidnap the boy, which was afterwards carried out, will be combated by the defense, which will endeavor to prove that she released in Pennsylvania and turned over to the authorities at Cleveland.

Yesterday's Testimony.

The state completed its testimony today. It was mainly the same as that given yesterday in the trial of James Boyle, but some additional witnesses were summoned for the purpose of connecting Mrs. Boyle with the abduction. One of the Cleveland policemen who took part in the arrest testified that she said:

"I am the frail little woman who planned the whole thing."

The finding of the ransom money secreted in her clothing was also testified to. The proprietor of the rooming apartment in Cleveland identified Boyle and Mrs. Boyle as the couple who rented an apartment from her under the name of "Walter." An effort was made to prove her connection with the plot while in Pennsylvania and her remark that she expected to receive some money soon was brought out.

FORMER BANKER MORSE IS NOW DEAD BROKE.

Once Worth $300,000—All His Holdings Vanish.

New York, May 7.—Charles W. Morse, the former banker, who is now in the Tombs prison under sentence for violation of the national banking law, has not a share of stock, a bond or a piece of real estate left of his former estate of an estimated value of $300,000, according to a lawyer who gave in supplementary proceedings last week, and which was made public today. Morse was at one time one of the largest holders of securities of the $500,000 Consolidated Steamship company and controlled three national banks. He testified in the supplementary proceedings that he had given up his property to creditors to secure his debts and declared that he did not know whether the creditors had sold him out, but asserted that if there was any surplus derived from such sales it would go to other creditors who have obtained judgments against him, and that he personally would receive none of the proceeds of the sales.

Mr. Morse was ordered to leave a bank stock which he formerly owned was hypothecated "in some 200 odd banks" through Moseley & Co. He stated that he had received $40,000 and that he "ave Mr. Berwind $150,000 of Consolidated Steamship stock and his stock in the Fifth avenue, all of which Mr. Morse was instructed to cover his indebtedness to Mr. Berwind. Mr. Morse gave other property on Fifth avenue to Moseley & Co. to pay off loans made to him.

Mr. Morse said that no member of his family had any property in connection with the case, and that he never lost a set of books.

EVELYN THAW'S FINE PAID.

She Evades Jail and Her Attorney Pays $250 to Receiver.

New York, May 7.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw did not go to Ludlow street jail today. Instead, representatives of Daniel O'Reilly, her counsel, paid over to George B. Hayes, the receiver appointed to take charge of Mrs. Thaw's affairs, the amount of $250. No money was imposed upon her by Justice McAvoy for contempt in failure to appear in supplementary proceedings. According to the court's order, this sum is to be applied to the extinction of the judgment for $258 secured by Elias Hartwig, a milliner, upon which the proceedings for supplementary proceedings were taken.

There still remains to be paid a sum of nearly $100, made up of costs in these courts and the receiver's fee. It is before Mrs. Thaw can have her affairs taken out of the hands of the receiver. Unless she pays these amounts, attorneys stated today, further action will be taken, and she will be again called in supplementary proceedings.

RIOTING BRICKMAKERS

Tie Up All Large Yards in Vicinity of Kingston, N. Y.

Kingston, N. Y., May 7.—Rioting here today in connection with the strike of brickmakers has tied up all the large yards in this section. At the yard of the Utter Brick company at Utter Landing a horse and a half dozen men were killed and a number of others injured. The rioting was caused by gangs of strike sympathizers in several yards quantities of half finished bricks were ruined by the mob, while a number of men were injured. The number of men out has now reached nearly 800. Many of them are paroled prisoners from state penitentiaries. It is feared that the rioting may reach serious proportions should the manufacturers attempt next Monday to carry out a plan to operate the yards with non-union men.

New London Contestants Pray for Revocation of Probate of Will.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, May 7.—A petition was filed today in the supreme court of the District of Columbia by Raymond P. Carolyn A. Clayton B. and Franklin A. Smith, all of New London, praying for the revocation of the probate of the will of Addie R. Perkins. The petitioners are nieces and nephews of the deceased, and claim that no such will was ever made. They allege mental incapacity and undue influence on the part of the beneficiary of the will. The estate involved is understood to be quite large and a spirited contest is expected.

dare do this for fear the bill would be taken off the table and killed at some moment when the guard was down. This parliamentary point is quite outside the merits of the proposition, of course, but it affects the whole matter. There is no doubt about the right of the matter, too. It is as good as a certainty that the senate would find in the implied snub, the impudent lack of confidence, shown by the house a good enough reason for killing off at short notice anything the house might support under such circumstances. That doesn't alter the house's right to refer the matter to a house committee, if such a right existed, but it does make it clear that no such right exists.

To get back to the situation as to the general matter, on Wednesday, when members had had a chance to sleep on the matter, quite a number began to see that they had been following a wrong line, and that the house was getting far away from the time honored custom and practice and clear of a conservative basis. The members began to feel that the house was getting far away from the time honored custom and practice and clear of a conservative basis. The members began to feel that the house was getting far away from the time honored custom and practice and clear of a conservative basis.

Not only that, but he insisted that this wasn't feasible or practicable, because of the length of the bill and so on, but in the end of the time he could make the bill over—when 255 couldn't—because the framework is all there. Anybody who knows anything about the bill, and who isn't all to be done by the changing of a few "thens" and "ands," as Chandler airily stated, will be able to see even when it isn't that it is a good thing that the bill would be easy for the house to do it on the floor. If but a few changes in phraseology are needed, that is easy. It needs no committee to do it.

Well, to get back again: More than one member also realized that the bill was following was an "insurance" leadership, and when their blood cooled they commenced to doubt the wisdom of it.

All of these reasons, and a hundred more, made the house quite ready to that day, and then, in passing the Chandler motion, and by the time request Justice Garretson to charge the jury will be drawn and filed tomorrow.

As the trial nears its end, both prosecution and defense profess complete confidence of the outcome. District Attorney McCreary said that he could not see any other result than a verdict of guilty as charged in the indictment. Mr. McCreary, Eugene Young and Daniel O'Reilly, counsel for the defense, on the other hand, say that they are sure of their client's acquittal.

Most of the day's session was taken up with the testimony of the state's expert witnesses. They all expressed the opinion, predicated on the mathematical question presented by the prosecution, that Captain Hains was sane at the time he shot and killed Annis.

WHAT A NEWSPAPER SHOWS

A newspaper shows that a town is of newspaper size, and the shape and character of it speak for the enterprise of the merchants and the industry of the town. A newspaper is a mirror of the town it represents, and by it a wider public and wider world reach a better story for the town than a poorly patronized one. It is not the sentiment of the editor which counts so much, but the business activity or lack of it shown in the newspaper columns.

A Boston paper the past week has discontinued the publication of its evening edition and has thus acknowledged the supremacy of the morning newspaper field. As a contemporary says: "The morning newspaper, by reason of having more time to prepare its news, is a better balanced, a more rounded out, and a satisfactory product. It reaches a wider public and yields more revenue than the evening paper. Its advertising fluctuates less than those of evening newspapers. It is a more substantial proposition from the standpoint of the reader, the advertiser and the publisher."

Ran 25 Feet Into Platform.

The pressure of the wire brake stopped the wheels of the train, but the momentum was so great that the locomotive and cars slid along the rails in the terminal and tore away the bumper at the end of the track, running about twenty-five feet into the platform before they came to a standstill. Three of the passengers were injured.
